

UPDATE- WE'RE HERE TO HELP

We understand the concerns and uncertainty you may be experiencing during the recent COVID-19 outbreak. Our highest responsibility to you is the delivery of reliable service by protecting you against insect, rodent and termite intrusion. Our service has been important, but more so now than ever before.

We believe this situation while difficult and disruptive to our life style will bring forward the strengths of customers and Impact Pest Elimination alike.

On March 19, 2020 the Department of Homeland Security updated guidance and identified exterminators as a critical infrastructure industry. Impact Pest Elimination clearly understand the critical importance of the service we bring to our communities.

In order to continue uninterpreted service all Impact Pest Elimination team members have been trained to follow and strictly adhere to CDC safety precautions without exception, in all circumstances in the field and in our administrative centers. We understand that over the years many of our field service technicians have become a part of your family and for your continued protection we will provide extensive exterior service protocols during this crisis. Should you require emergency interior service please contact our office. Our service technicians will respond and follow CDC guidelines to include but not limited to social distancing at that time.

We remain committed to protecting your health, property and the environment.

Please stay healthy and safe.

Frank A. Miller
CEO